An Overview Of The Endocannabinoid System

The benefits of CBD for cannabinoids are well established. All humans naturally have an ECS or endocannabinoid system in their bodies which is vital in processing cannabinoids and helping the body maintain homeostasis. Various CB1 and CB2 receptors can be found throughout the body's central nervous system and peripheral nervous system.

The endocannabinoid system is involved in regulating various processes in our body which include but are not limited to: appetite, digestion, immune function, inflammation, memory, mood, motor control, pain, reproduction, sleep, temperature regulation and much more. CBD is an effective natural form to help the body achieve homeostasis which is vital in keeping your body functioning at its most efficient state.
